The Elections.

In Massachusetts the result has been everything that the most sanguine Republican could hope for. Gov. Banks' plan is nearly 20,000, and his majority over all is 11,500. The entire list of Republican Candidates is elected. The Republicans have elected 187 Representatives in 46 opposition, and 37 Senators to opposition. Probably the Republican tickets are elected in every county in the State.

But the grandest triumph of all is electing in entire Republican devotion to Congress, in spite of a more determined and reckless opposition than was met before in the State. Burlington's majority is 455 in 1888 his majority was 385 in 1886. Rice is elected by 10,500 majority. Alley by about 500 majority. In all the other Districts the majority are large.

Thousands and thousands of people greeted Burlington and Rice when the result was known, and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed. The immense crowds were headed by Gen. Schuyler, Gen. Wilson, Gov. Banks, Hon. Adams, Burlington, Hon. Alex. H. Rice, and others, and the rejoicings were continued until a late hour.

In New York, Morgan, rep., is undoubtedly elected Governor by 20,000 plurality. As far as heard from there is an anti-administration gain of three members of Congress, and probably four.

The anti-administration have swept New Jersey clean, and probably gained three Congressmen.

In Illinois, the election is close, and nothing decisive is known.

From Michigan, Wisconsin, and Delaware, nothing decisive has been obtained.

WATKINS JOURNAL. In view of occasional rains, and the frequent watering of our streets, we do wish that our friends, in reading our illustrations, would have the kindest consideration to pass in single file, on the right hand, instead of going in couples and occupying both the longitudinal layers of stone—thereby crowding somebody into the mud. A person in crossing is legally entitled to a free passage on the right hand line of travel, as against anybody and everybody passing him—and it is wrong for a husband and wife, much more for two dubious members of the community, thus to "bust in couples." The line of demarcation for our crossings is, at the best, too narrow to be justly overstepped by a double breadth of elbows; more especially if such line is to "stretch out to the very crack of doom."

CRIMINAL MURDER. An anecdote, copied into one of our late papers, of a new married clergyman in connection with a significant verse which he requested should be omitted in singing a certain hymn, brings to mind, as within our knowledge, a reading and singing where there was no omission. A clerical friend was to be married on a certain Monday, and on the day preceding his bridegroom, being present—bygone from the pulpit hymn suggestive of the duty of banishing worldly thoughts from the solemnities of the Sabbath, and very honestly read in a part the following verse—much to the significant observation of a rough sister or two who happened to be present:

"To-morrow will be time enough To feel your heart control: To shall not violate this day, The Sabbath of the soul."

Blackwood, for Octobers. Such and so long established has been the high reputation of this Magazine, that to say much in praise of this or any particular number, would be "wasteful and ridiculous excess." In regard to the work generally, in later years, it has seemed to us that many of the articles are too elaborate, too staid and unimaginative, for a monthly publication—that they are often too long, and too continued from number to number. A still more noticeable feature of the work, which is not to our taste, is the fact that it contains few or no miscellaneous notices, or items of general intelligence, not any brief critical notices of contemporary publications.

In this respect we think Harper a model magazine, and the Atlantic Monthly and North American Quarterly of high excellence.

"Every body knows," or, rather, every body ought to know, that Capt. Thomas Rickford, in November Market, kept his stall constantly supplied with fish, oysters, lobsters, sea trout and fish. Rickford is a good natured man, and is always ready to accommodate the fish loving public with a choice fish dinner, that is, if they have the money wherewith to meet his claim. Drop in to his stall and get a dinner.

The managers of the Crystal Palace, which was recently burned, appear to be getting a quarrel. As they have no longer a "glass house," they begin to "throw stones."

The large barn and sheds formerly connected with the Fairgrounds, at Mount Vernon, were consumed by fire on the 1st of the 18th ult. The barn was filled with hay.

Georgia has over 200 miles of railroad built and paid for, and yielding to the stockholders more than an average of 7 per cent yearly dividends. Within the next year 200 miles of additional, new lines, and equipped, will be in operation.
